16h30-16h45: Discussion and conclusion of the training

16h45-17h: Diplomas & bubbles – end of the Boot camp

More about this training:

Target group: We Leave it up to you, the CEO, General Managers and Head of Departments to decide who you see as the potential "leaders of tomorrow". The ideal candidate has worked in the media industry for a number of years and has the potential to be trusted with a leadership position in your company in the years to come, which is why this foundation laying and mind opening programme is perfect for them.

The training requires an active participation for two days and a small amount of preparation work (essentially a short, 10-minute case study presentation).

Concretely: The commitment to participate in this event starts on Monday 26th at 16h (welcome at 15h30) and finishes on Wednesday 28th at 16h30. The group will consist of a maximum of 22 participants from all over Europe, mostly advanced markets. Participants will learn from seasoned executives and though leaders of our industry, but will also have time to exchange best case studies amongst themselves.

Aim: This training is designed to be operational in nature, rather than strategic, even if students will be asked to reflect on "the bigger picture" of our industry's future. Over two days we will tackle important issues impacting the daily job of the different departments within a sales house (Sales, Pricing, Marketing, Research). Each day will be guided by a mentor, who will put his knowledge and experience at the service of the 'students'. Three to four additional speakers, from all sides of our industry, will then concretely dive into various topics impacting TV's future.

To register: <http://www.egta.com/?page=event-registration&idEvent=96>

Price: 1.300 € (this price does not include hotel, nor travel costs, but it includes lunches and dinners).
